CAMPUS SUSTAINABILITY

Harvard's Vision of Sustainability and Wellbeing

A more equitable society with healthier people and a healthier planet.

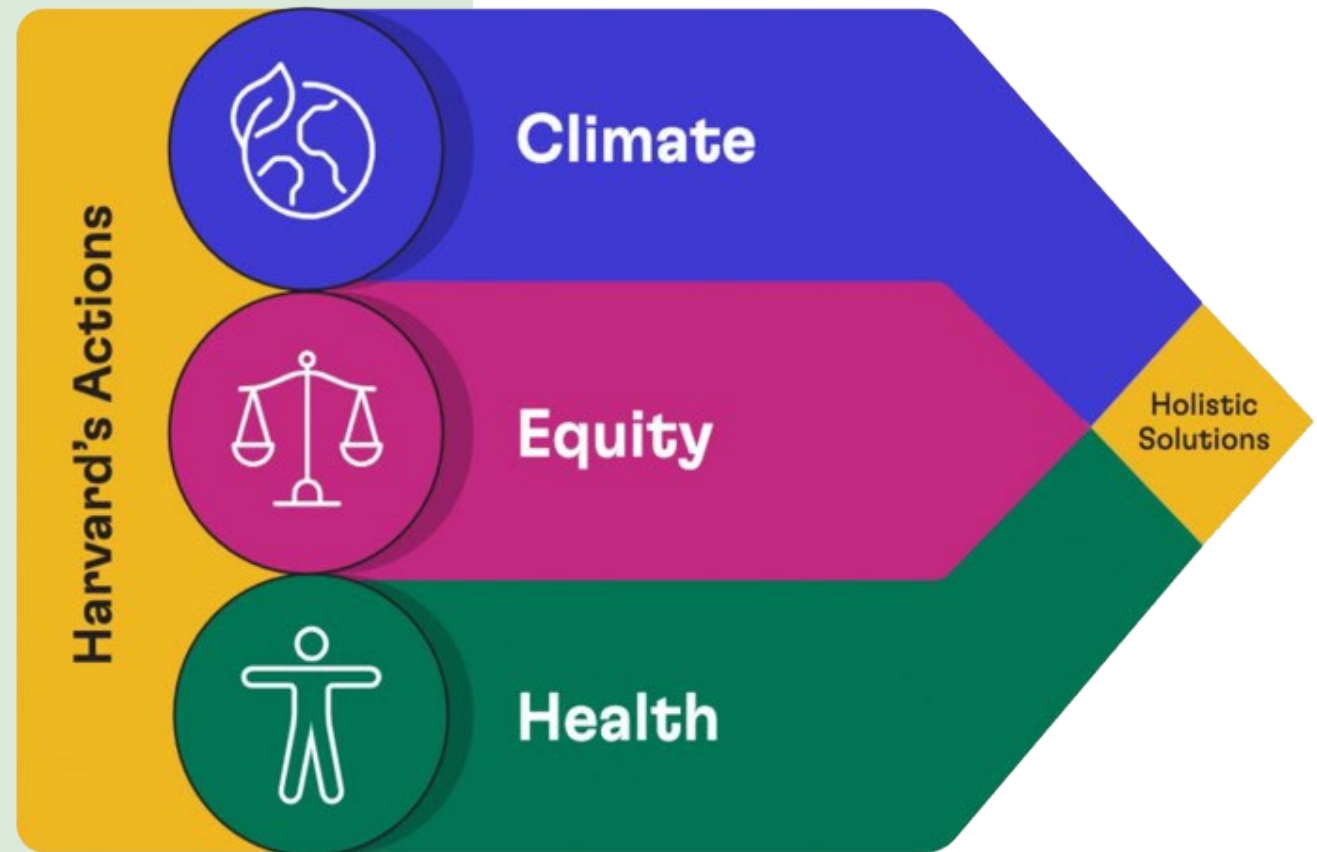

CAMPUS SUSTAINABILITY

Harvard's Approach to Sustainable Development

Accelerating action at the intersection of climate, equity, and health.

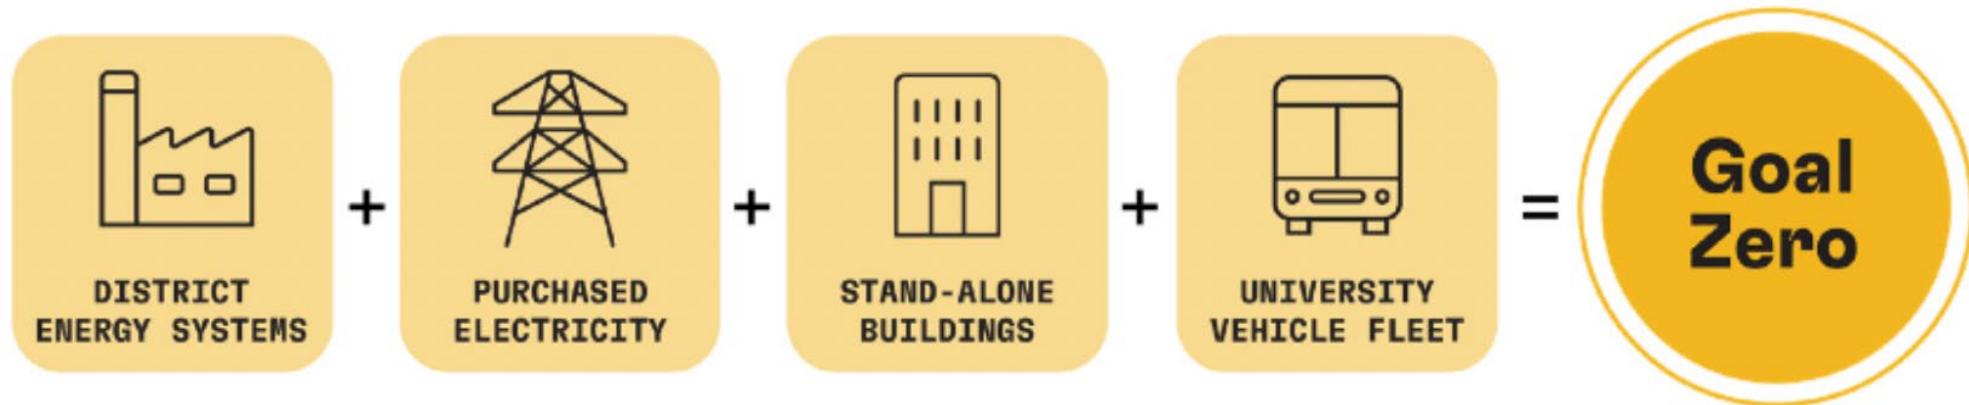

CAMPUS SUSTAINABILITY

How We Power

- Goal Zero: Fossil Fuel-Free by 2050: Harvard is accelerating a fossil fuel-free world, aiming to power all campus operations without the use of fossil fuels by 2050
- To accomplish Goal Zero, all of Harvard is engaged in actively planning and taking steps to achieve a fossil fuel-free future

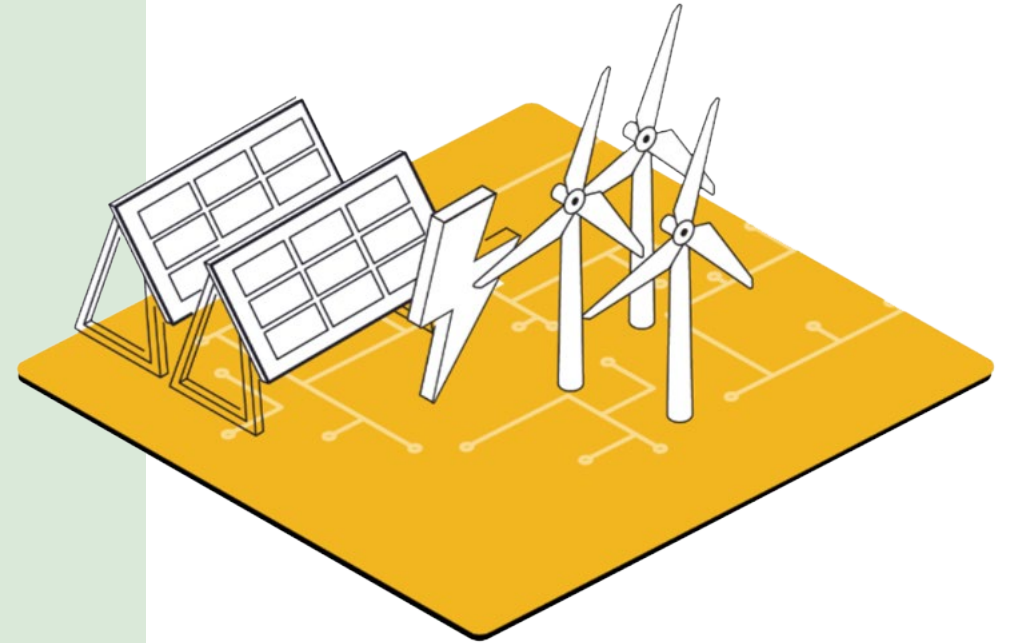

CAMPUS SUSTAINABILITY

How We Power

- Fossil Fuel-Neutral by 2026: As a bridge to reach Goal Zero, Harvard has a short-term objective to be fossil fuel-neutral by 2026
- Harvard will continue to prioritize energy efficiency, while balancing its remaining campus emissions through renewable energy purchases and investing in projects that offset both greenhouse gas emissions and the health impacts of our use of fossil fuels

How We Build

Objective: Serve as a blueprint to establish a standard for climate, equity, health, and resiliency in the built environment.

CAMPUS SUSTAINABILITY

Harvard Healthier Building Academy

Translating research into practice and institutionalizing standards Harvard-wide.

CAMPUS SUSTAINABILITY

Supply/Value Chain (Scope 3) Emissions

- Holistic approach to Harvard's supply chain impacts
- Actively piloting solutions to reduce these emissions

CAMPUS SUSTAINABILITY

On-Site Renewable Energy: 3 MW

- Harvard has a total of 31 solar PV projects in the Greater Boston area
- ~2.7 million kWh produced per year, equivalent of powering 250 American homes for one year

CAMPUS SUSTAINABILITY

The Salata Institute for Climate and Sustainability

- Launched in fall 2022
- Established to catalyze research programs across Harvard's vast community of scholars, students, practitioners, and staff

"The biggest problems posed by climate change cut across Schools and disciplines, so by pulling together faculty and students from throughout Harvard, we'll be better able to tackle those big challenges. Our goal is to harness the forces and strengths of Harvard so that collectively — faculty, students, staff, and alumni — we can put our shoulder to the wheel to really drive meaningful, constructive climate progress."

- Jim Stock, Vice Provost for Climate and Sustainability
