Introduction

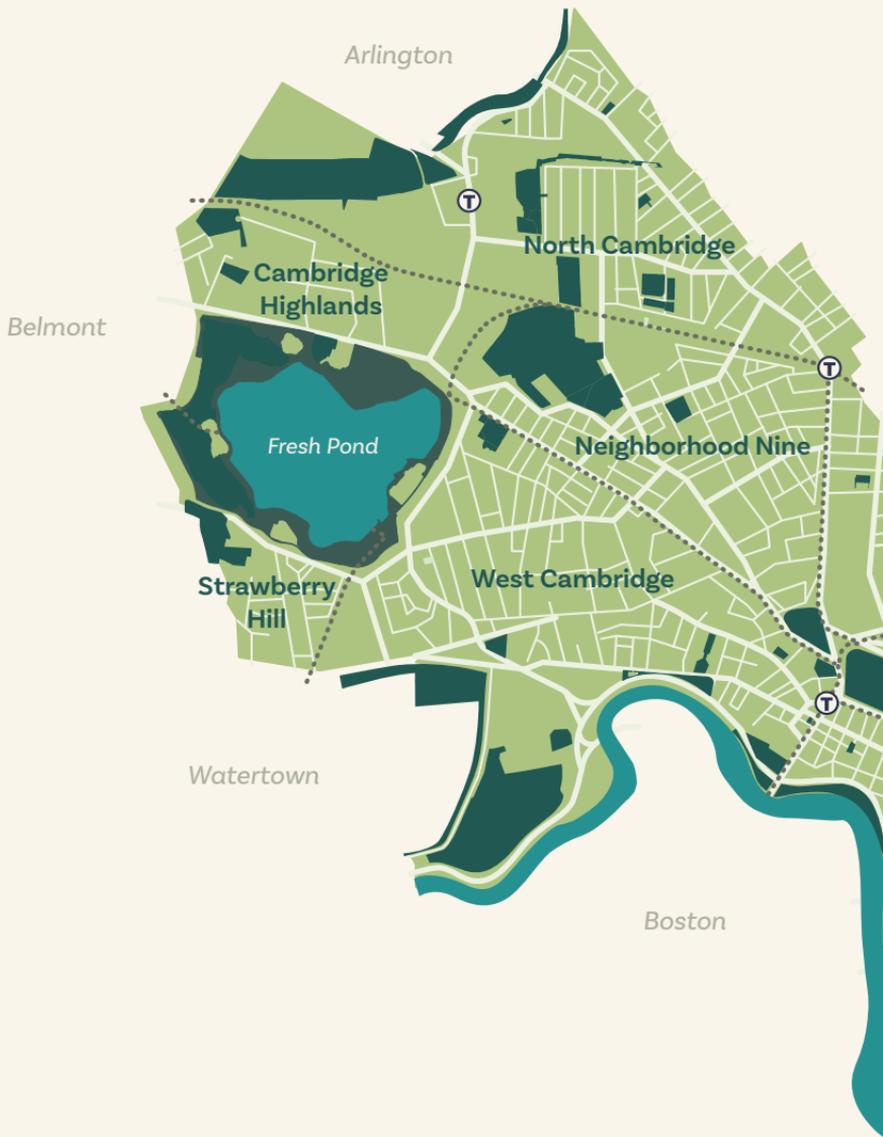

Cambridge contains over 80 parks and open spaces. From playgrounds full of excited kids to quiet spaces for reflection, the city's parks provide a variety of experiences for residents and visitors. While each park is unique, they all offer space for recreation, enjoying nature, and building community.

This guide lists parks and open spaces throughout Cambridge and provides information about their facilities and amenities. While this is not an exhaustive directory, it contains information about a range of spaces, from athletic fields to community gardens to dog runs. In addition to parks owned and operated by the City of Cambridge, this guide includes local open spaces managed by the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR), the National Park Service (NPS), and privately-owned spaces that welcome everyone.

We hope this guide will help you explore the beauty, play, and innovation that Cambridge has to offer - and discover new places along the way.

East Cambridge

East Cambridge, a neighborhood of over 10,300 residents, was host to major manufacturing and industrial businesses during the 19th century. Since the early 1980s, the neighborhood has transformed into a mix of residential, commercial, and retail developments. Cambridge Crossing, a mixed-use development formerly known as North Point, connects the upper part of East Cambridge with Somerville and Boston. To the south, Kendall Square, recognized internationally as a hub for life sciences and biotech, straddles East Cambridge and MIT neighborhoods. The Charles River is the eastern boundary of the neighborhood.

Somerville

Boston

1. Ahern Field

259 Charles Street • 2.6 acres

Closed for renovation through 2020

Located on the grounds of John M. Tobin Elementary School, this field is currently closed for renovation by the City.

11. Winthrop Square

83 Winthrop Street • 0.3 acres

Open dawn until dusk

With its benches and lawn area, Winthrop Square offers a reprieve from the bustle of Harvard Square. Once the site of a marketplace in historic Newtowne (the original name of the 17th century Puritan settlement where present-day Harvard Square is located), the park is now situated in close proximity to a variety of businesses, inviting visitors to relax, sip coffee, or eat lunch while foot and motor traffic pass by on Mt. Auburn and JFK Streets, both of which border the park.

Did you know?

The stone block near the center of the park bearing the words “Newtowne Market” looks to be a remnant of the historic marketplace, but it is actually a piece of public art entitled “Quiet Cornerstone,” installed in 1986.

North Cambridge

North Cambridge is a neighborhood of nearly 14,000 residents, and it borders Arlington, Belmont, and Somerville. The neighborhood's main corridor is Massachusetts Avenue, extending from Porter Square to the Arlington border. The Red Line runs through North Cambridge between the Porter Square and Alewife MBTA stations, which provide access to the Alewife Brook Reservation and the regional Minuteman Bikeway. While the neighborhood is largely residential with a mix of local retail, there is a significant amount of new commercial and residential development along Cambridgepark Drive, near the Alewife MBTA station. It also provides access to the Concord Turnpike and Route 2.

Fresh Pond Reservation spans the West Cambridge, North Cambridge, and Strawberry Hill neighborhoods. Central to the area is the Fresh Pond Reservoir, the source of Cambridge's water supply. Water flows into the reservoir from local waterways and is purified by the City's Walter J. Sullivan Water Treatment Facility. The 162 acre reservoir is surrounded by open space, including over two miles of trails for walking, running, and biking. The reservation is also the habitat of a variety of plant and animal species, making it a popular destination for birders. In addition to the trail system, Fresh Pond Reservation includes expansive green space for playing and picnicking. Dogs also benefit from the beauty of Fresh Pond, as they are allowed to be off-leash on the trails and in the lawn area.

Did you know?

From 1826-1892, Fresh Pond's water was the source for the Tudor Ice Company, which shipped high quality ice as far as the Caribbean, India, South America, and Europe.
