SUBJECT: Neighborhood Statistics Report for Cambridge

Census data are now available for each of Cambridge's neighborhoods. The attached 26-page summary report contains tables for all 13 neighborhoods. Separate 9-page narrative reports for each neighborhood are also available. This is the first time that detailed census data have been provided by neighborhood. Previous neighborhood reports were based on data from census tracts or block groups, but their boundaries did not usually coincide with those of the neighborhoods. This change should be noted when comparing 1980 data with earlier results.

This report's figures for Neighborhood 12 (Cambridge Highlands) and, to a much lesser extent, Neighborhood 9 should be used with caution. It was necessary to "move" 437 persons from Neighborhood 9 into 12 to raise its population above 1,000. Otherwise, the Census Bureau would have suppressed or changed some data throughout the City to protect the confidentiality of Neighborhood 12 respondents. The part of Neighborhood 9 that was "moved" is the large block bounded by Sherman Street (including Bellis Circle), Walden, Garden and Field Streets, Bay State Road and the Boston and Maine Railroad tracks. That block encompasses about 220 housing units with 437 residents, including 85 subsidized and 69 market-rate units at the Briston Arms apartments.

The switch resulted in a 63% population gain for Neighborhood 12, but only a 4% loss for Neighborhood 9 (with an original population of 11,082).
